Further details of the derailment of Santa Fe westbound freight No. 1067 on the New Mexico division between Algodones and Bernalillo Sunday night are interesting. Engineer Blevin, who was pulling the freight, saw on the east side of the track a wall of water with a foaming crest five or six feet high coming down the slope from the mountains at right angles to the track. The engineer saw that he could not stop his train before reaching the spot where the water would hit the track, so he opened the throttle a little and started in to race with the flood. Faster and faster went the train and faster and faster came the wall of water down the arroyo. The engineer had begun to hope that he could get clear by and escape being struck when the water hit the train in the vicinity of the thirty-fifth car, turned over that car and several others and washed the track out from under them. All of which naturally resulted in the stoppage of the train. The engineer, however, pulled into Bernalillo with his thirty-four cars.

SAN MIGUEL TRUSTY

ESCAPES FROM PRISON

Arthur Mattney, a trusty, whose time would have expired in November, and who was serving a term for breaking into a box car at Las Vegas, made his escape from the penitentiary at Santa Fe yesterday. The bloodhounds trailed him toward Lamy and it is believed that he will soon be back in custody.

A political speaker was attacking the government of the day with more venom than reason. A man at the back of the hall at last cried out: "You're wrong, sir!" A little nettled the orator continued, without heeding. Presently, in answer to another strong assertion, came again "You're wrong, sir!" The speaker looked angry, but continued on the war path. "You're wrong, sir!" again rang out.

Angrily addressing the persistent one, the orator cried: "Look here, I could tell this man something about this government which would make his hair stand on end!" "You're wrong again, sir!" came exultantly from the critic, as he stood up and removed his hat. His head was as bald as the proverbial billiard ball—Tit-Bits.
